

Electronic music/live concert

Local Loop meets Global Loop!

Superlooper – beats & loops from Vienna at the Austria Pavilion

Performing live their latest composition “Local Loop” on June 24/25 at the Austrian Pavilion the Viennese trio Superlooper sets new standards in electronic music. Their unique combination of instruments, sounds and voices guarantee extraordinary delightful concerts. “Electronic. Analog. Live” – explains Alexander J. Eberhard (E-Viola) the internationally successful concept of the band.

Expo 2005 Aichi/Austria Pavilion – On June 24/25 the Austrian Pavilion turns into a concert hall. At 4pm and 7pm, Ludwig Bekic (echo delays, & mixer), Alexander J. Eberhard (E-Viola) and Florian Kmet (Guitar & Voice) – better known as Superlooper – will perform original compositions live to the interested audience.

Awarded Gustav Mahler Prize

Having been awarded the international Gustav Mahler composition prize and grants for composition the Austrian combo is on its way to success and recognition. Original compositions, the outstanding use of sounds, voices and instruments and their unique approach to electronic music are the main ingredients of Superloopers recipe to success.

Extraordinary virtuous

The violin bow on bass guitar, fuzz toned E-Viola, echo delays and mixer – this is the mixture the virtuous compositions are performed with. Played live these concerts are believed to leave an outstanding impression on the spectators.
